Welcome

Imagine peaceful rolling hills surrounded by mature forests and old stone walls framing open meadows. A modern take that incorporates the ideals of the past, the homes of Lewis Farm marry ecology with quality construction and state-of-the-art technology. At Lewis Farm, life is relaxed as it should be.

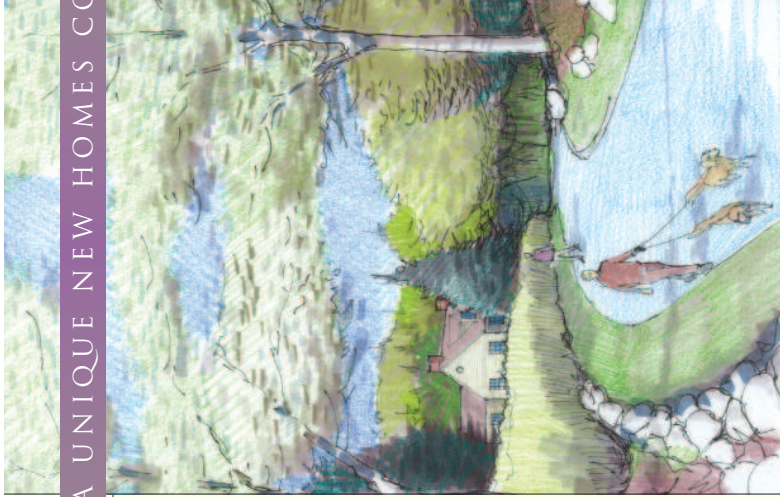

Lewis Farm

You don't have to use your imagination to see what the 135-acre site must have looked like as a working farm in the 1700's. Backyards open up onto conservation land that extends as far as the eyes can see. A community-oriented atmosphere, Lewis Farm includes peaceful walking trails, a festive pavilion, and a large open meadow where neighbors and friends can gather for parties and picnics. With a variety of home styles, this community of new homes is a perfect combination of abundant natural resources, green construction and local amenities.

Green Home Construction

Green homes address environmental concerns by promoting design and construction of homes that have a higher performance level than conventional homes. These homes rely upon established and proven design features and technologies that potentially reduce long term costs particularly those features that involve energy and water efficiency. Generally green homes are healthier, more comfortable, more durable and more energy efficient. At Lewis Farm, new homes are being constructed to the LEED® Green Building Rating System.
